Mission: professional Development & Professional learning

- To strengthen links to class room practices
- To create ongoing, self directed and collaborate opportunities for staff to engage in e-learning developments.
- To keep abreast of emerging trends in educational technologies to promote innovative pedagogies.
- To enhance research led teaching

Gearing to meet Online Teaching

Objective:

Passing out information and teaching through e-learning team, provides an ongoing source of professional learning designed to raise staff awareness, knowledge and skills about teaching with technology issues.

- A Publication of Electronic News Letters in the college college blog as well as via broadcast email to all staff.
- Topics on emerging educational technologies and their pedagogical applications are strategically selected to raise awareness and stimulate interest among staff.
- Typically a member of e-learning team volunteers to draft a newsletter on a topic of interest and the document is then developed collaboratively.
- To date we have produced 2 e news letters on topics ranging from using different platforms enabling online teaching.
- Anecdotal feed back from staff suggests this is a highly valued professional learning source, to provide timely information through out the semester.
- Use of blog tool promotes Staff engagement with web
- The e-newsletters also serve the strategic purpose of raising the profile of the college and its services, mainstreaming e-learning
- We find this a sustainable strategy as it strengthens team collaboration, disperses the workload, and generates college –wide reach in an efficient and effective manner.

B Curation: The objective is to organize, summarize and share ( republish) information on topics of interest.

Curation offers a dynamic and flexible means of extending our professional learning offerings within the college making this a sustainable team based strategy that we use to
